At Enfield Grammar School, tradition and history are not just part of our past, they are the foundation of everything we do today. Our long-standing motto “Tant Que Je Puis” (As Much As I Can), is one which helps to shape our vision and our hopes for the young people we educate.

School is not just about grades and numbers, it is about the young person as a whole, being part of a school community. We believe passionately about developing the whole person; intellectually, emotionally, and socially. It is about belonging to a strong, supportive community and taking pride in oneself, in others, and in the school.

Our core values of PRIDE (Passion, Resilience, Integrity, Determination, and Empathy) shape the culture of our school and help mould our students into well-rounded young men, prepared to lead, to serve, and to thrive in an ever-changing world.

The Journey from Year 7 to Year 13

Students join us as boys - curious, eager, and ready to learn - and leave as confident, responsible young men, prepared for life beyond school.

Through both challenge and support, our students build resilience, independence, and a strong work ethic. As our students develop, they are given more responsibility and opportunities for leadership. By Year 13, they are not only learners but role models, ready to contribute to society.

Throughout their seven-year journey, we inspire our students to aim high and work hard. With a broad academic curriculum and rich extra-curricular programme, from music and sport to leadership and volunteering, we nurture a love of learning and the determination to succeed beyond the classroom.

At Enfield Grammar School, we take pride in ourselves, our school, and our community. We are proud of our long tradition, our enduring values, and, most of all, the young men who leave us ready to make a difference.
